Maps & Figures for the

CONSERVATION AGREEMENT

AND

CONSERVATION STRATEGY

COLUMBIA SPOTTED FROG (RANA LUTEIVENTRIS)
TOIYABE
GREAT BASIN SUBPOPULATION
NEVADA

SEPTEMBER 2003

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Page

Glossary of Terms iii
Acknowledgments vi

CONSERVATION AGREEMENT
FOR THE
TOIYABE SUBPOPULATION OF THE
COLUMBIA SPOTTED FROG

Purpose A-1
Conservation Goals of the Agreement A-1
Conservation Objectives A-2
Other Species Involved A-4
Signatory Parties A-4
Additional Participants/Cooperators A-4
Authorities A-5
Required Conservation Tasks and Responsibilities by Cooperator A-6
Conservation Schedule and Assessment A-7
    Coordinating Conservation Activities A-7
    Implementing Conservation Activities A-7
    Funding Conservation Activities A-8
Duration of Agreement A-8
National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) Compliance A-8
Federal Agency Compliance A-8
Signatures A-10

CONSERVATION STRATEGY
FOR THE
TOIYABE SUBPOPULATION OF THE
COLUMBIA SPOTTED FROG

Introduction S-1
Purpose S-1
Description and Ecology S-2
Species Distribution and Subpopulations S-3
Potential Threats to the Continued Existence of Toiyabe Spotted Frogs S-9
    Habitat Degradation S-9
    Overutilization S-10
    Disease and Predation S-10
    Inadequate Regulatory Mechanisms S-11
    Other Factors S-12

Adaptive Management S-13
Conservation Goals, Objectives, Strategies, and Actions S-15
Conservation Goals S-15
Conservation Objectives, Strategies, and Actions S-15
Bibliography S-30

List of Tables

Table A-1. Tasks and Responsibilities by Cooperator A-9
Table S-1. Conservation Strategy Implementation Schedule S-23

List of Figures

Figure 1. Distribution of the Columbia and the Oregon spotted frog in North America . S-5
Figure 2. Distribution of Great Basin and West Desert populations in Nevada S-6
Figure 3. Survey sites of Great Basin spotted frogs in Nevada showing historic and current distributions S-7
Figure 4. Current and historic distributions of Great Basin spotted frogs in the Toiyabe Range subpopulation area S-8
Figure 5. Adaptive management flow chart S-14

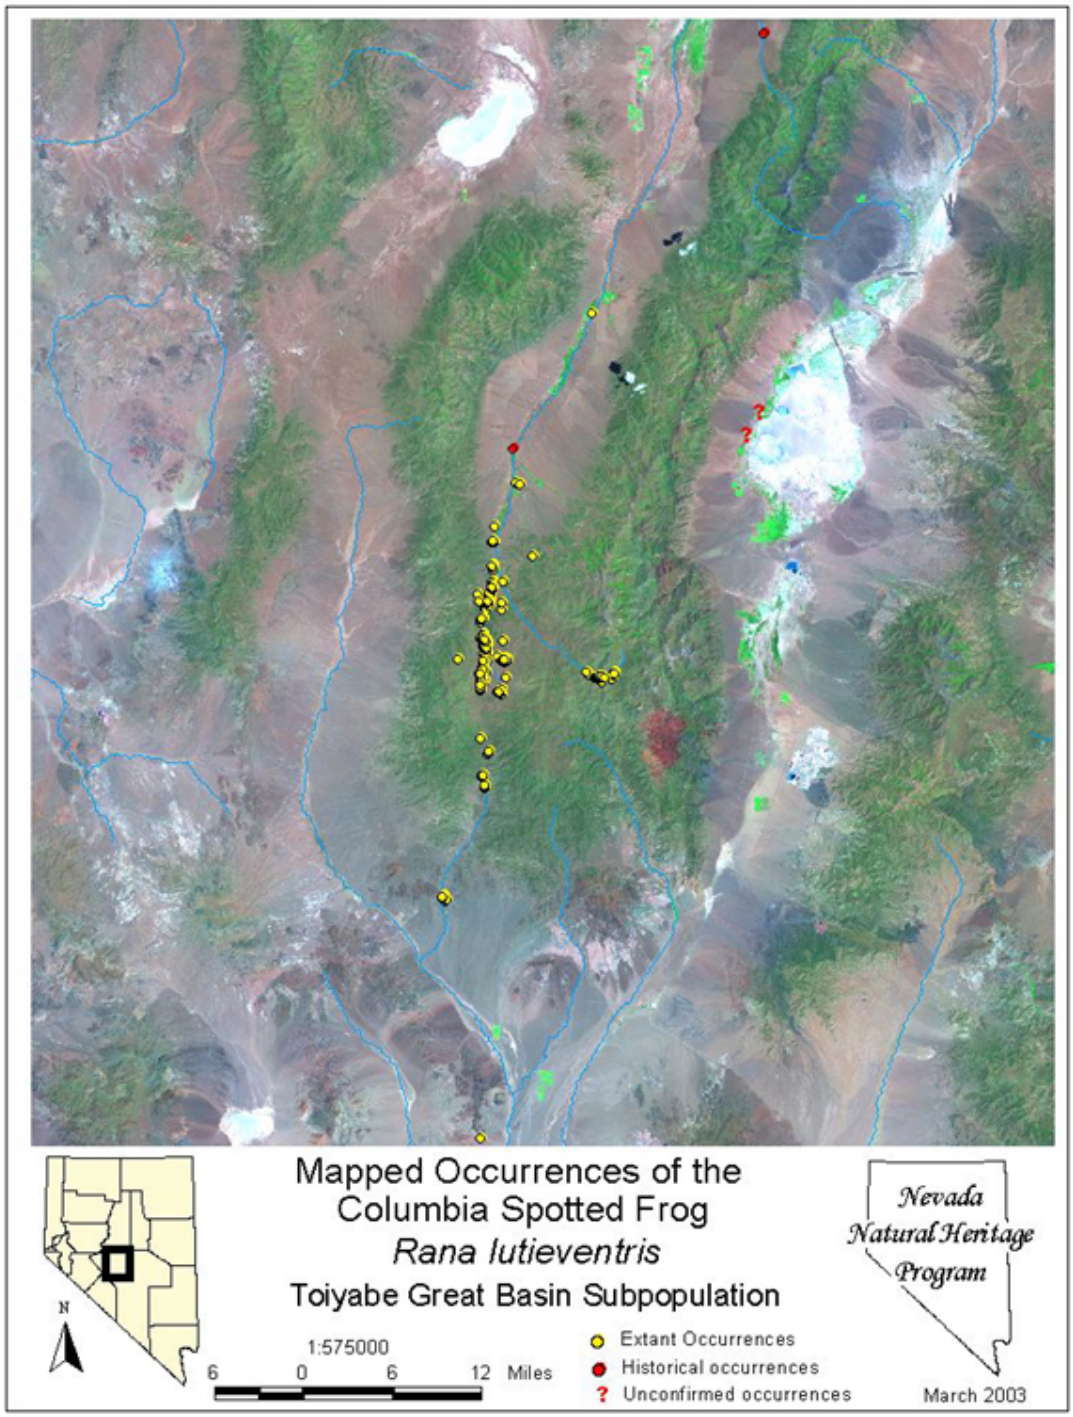

Figure 4. Current and historic distributions of Great Basin spotted frogs in the Toiyabe Range subpopulation area (Toiyabe spotted frog).